

WILL CLOSE CONTRACT FOR WHITE WAY THURSDAY

ONLY TWO PROPERTY OWNERS DISAGREE--THEIR PROPERTY WILL BE LEFT.

It was announced today by the members of the committee on the White Way proposition that the contract will be closed Friday for the erection of the stands and the wiring.

So far only two property owners in the downtown district have refused to subscribe their respective amounts but this will hardly count as a hitch in the progress of the proposition as the present intention is to skip their property. Of course, this will leave a gap in the line of stands but this will not hinder the committee from going ahead and getting as many subscribers as possible and the work will go right on as soon as the contract is let.

The committee has been out with a petition and since the first day it was put into circulation they have received much encouragement and cooperation from the property holders who favor the matter. The contract reads that the white way will not cost the property owners over $1.50 per front foot and it is not thought that it will exceed $1.50 per foot. The contractors have been here with miniature models of the styles of stands to be used and regardless of the refusal of the two property owners, the contract will not doubt be let Friday and Dothan will have a great White Way.

Defeat is a lesson that it not enough by itself.

The old members of the Annapolis Club must have extended a cordial greeting to the Colonel when he drove up.

Suppose that Colonel Roosevelt, who said last year his resignation could be a "catastrophe," had decided that those things will happen, would not have been careful now?

It is thought that old man Hiss was thoughtful enough to provide himself with a year's subscription to his home paper, that he is having a good deal to read now.

Honors will have to run Brandt for something, he has given the town so much free advertising till he will never want to drive an automobile for another millennium.

No other congressman has had the nerve to criticize Cist Hobson on playing hooky, since he has an announced opponent in his district.

"Underwood of Alabama may live one day south to be elected president," says the Valdosta Times "but he is about the strongest man that is being mentioned in connection with the office."

When a man first buys an automobile he is determined to keep it out of bad weather and keep the mud off. When he has run it a while he feels that he knows enough to keep the next one right.

The Dadeville Hot Cash is of the opinion that "Edison's prophecy that there will be no poverty in 100 years brings small comfort to us at the present day. We get here too soon to share in the boys that Mr. Edison says will come to our country."

The cold weather of winter is probably gone for this spring but there are little signs of spring yet. This has been a pretty good winter for the farmers, with the exception of too much rain, but they are making good time now that the weather has cleared up.

Washington, Jefferson and Jackson declined the third term, but that was before any learned to run the United States so well his services couldn't be dispensed with. The Colonel promised us when he turned the job over to that the new man would make good, but he has found he made a poor job of it, according to his way of thinking.

It is all we can do to keep from advertising the farmers to make an effort to raise twice as much corn this year and three times more groundnuts, than ever before, and we will let it pass, fearing that one will ask us what we know about it. We know a good deal about corn and groundnuts raising and feel that no new plans have been put on the cotton business, and we quit, except the boll weevil.

IF WE CARED.

We are in receipt of a 32-page booklet entitled "The Truth About Mr. Rockefeller and the Meritts." We never read a line of it, but the inside cover for it really matters a little. Whether Mr. Rockefeller held up the Meritts and took their railroad is worth nothing now. They should have pulled for help, before now, if it happened so long ago.

March came in like a month that had neither responsibility, and has out and lynched that he would be neither shown any hand disposition, or treated much like a lion. March is the month that puts the green in the trees, and the fishermen on the banks of the river. March is the month that the dogwood blossoms down here, and the time that we plant our corn, and the time when the range cow offers thanks, feeling she can get through. However, our range cows have played out. They are no more, and the Jersey is taking her place, and she must be kept up and looked after to get her results.

LAW MAKING.

If that is to be the law, and we suppose that it will be, then the insurance companies will have to take some steps in a moral way. They will not want to leave their money in good financial risks alone, but to meet guarantee to stay out of trouble.

Supreme courts often make laws and unmake them, but it seems not to take into count the family of such a man, who might have divided the income for years, to keep the premiums paid on a policy, only to see it thrown away when the husband is hanged for murder.

NOT CALLING NAMES.

The Tuskegee News is mad. It says: "We won't call any names, but it makes no sense to see some of the little one-gallop country weeklies starting already to knock and criticize Underwood. If you haven't got pride and patriotism enough to support and encourage a son of your own state it would be better for you to close it up the shop and get out of the game."

Bro's name is right. Any Alabama paper is doing a mighty little thing to speak lightly of Underwood's candidacy.

AI, COME ON!

The Albany Herald has made a good record. It has almost a perfect score, but it has not read The Eagle closely. Listen: "We claim the brass button. Will some one kindly come forward and pin it on? The Herald is the only paper in the United States that has not printed in its columns the Missouri 'Horn' song." It is glory enough for one year. We are content.

We have never printed it, because there were not sufficient blue prints with it to make it clear. Our readers might have figured it out, but we make it a rule not to print too much stuff we know nothing about.

It looks as if those persons and papers in Birmingham who asserted that the only effective way to dispose of the blind dogs was to re-establish the open saloons were mistaken. Sheriff McAdory states in a communication in the Birmingham papers that his office has made over a thousand arrests since the 1st of October, 1911, of persons who were selling whiskey illegally. People will learn after a while that all ideas advanced in a campaign for the restoration of the sale of liquor in a county or community are not necessarily sound—though we suppose even an unsound theory will answer the purpose of causing the residence of those who want to vote for the barrooms anyhow. In other words, the old device will do, no matter how ridiculous. Greenboro Watchman.

TAKING CHANCES.

The Birmingham Ledger is taking chances, when it makes the following comment about a certain section of that country: "Nothing would be more helpful in the way of a moral influence to the Lowcountry than the hanging of about six white men as one continuous performance. It is the only effective remedy that could be employed against a carnival of assassinations and a reign of anarchy in that neighborhood which would be a disgrace even to a semi-civilized community."

That is a statement calculated to terrify the people of that community against the editor of the Ledger, and we would advise him not to be caught around there any more than necessary, even if he has held the truth.

The supreme court has decided that a man who is hanged for a crime cannot expect his heirs to collect his life insurance policy. The court didn't go one step further, and specify that if a man was taken out and lynched that he would be entitled to the money, but it might as well have done it.

DO THE BAD THINGS FIRST.

Pensacola Journal.

Many a man who has quite much good work has fallen short of success because some despicable thing lay in his way which he would not overcome.

A bookkeeper who complained that he was not advanced as rapidly as he thought he deserved to be, had it pointed out to him that his handwriting was bad. Practice in handwriting was repugnant to him, and he remained in the inferior position.

Many a man talks because he refuses to do the small things in practice, and then looks after annoying little details, and these mount up in the end to nothing and some day form a barrier against his further progress.

The undone task, resting upon your head, weighs you down and holds you back. The well-finished one, beneath your feet, raises you up and helps you forward. The road to success is a rough one. Flowers bloom at the wayside. It is true, but he who would get on must roll the stones out of his way first and let the flowers follow afterward.

Somewhat or other it seems that the hard things are the important things. Maybe it is because they are hard and sometimes left undone that their importance appears. A single little job may not seem very important to a great locomotive, until it is missing from its place.

If you have not met with the success you think your efforts merit, do not sit down to groan and rail against fate, but just quietly cast about for the disagreeable parts of your work, from which you have shrunk. There you will find your point of weakness.

You may not attach much importance to these things you shrink from. But you can never know how your neglect of them has changed the current of your life. You may know that you have failed of pronounced success, but never know just why.

UNDERWOOD'S STRENGTH.

All men of political experience have felt that Oscar Underwood was the logical man to head the democratic presidential ticket, but not all were frank enough to say so. Now, however, not only the politicians, but the public in general feel that Underwood is to be the nominee. He is not the official majority leader in the House of Representatives but the most powerful man in the democratic party today.

If there be some politicians who are actuating the cause of other candidates and claiming that this or that candidate is in the lead, their views and statements are based largely upon their wishes or their environment.

Underwood is the one man in the democratic party who could without any reasonable doubt lead the democracy to victory in November next.

Some other democratic candidate might be able to win but chances would not be particularly strong in his favor. Underwood's nomination will give such assurance of victory that the democratic party would in one united act never before since the war, and thousands of republicans who did not believe in a radical tariff would vote for him. Within the past two or three weeks so strong has Underwood become as a presidential possibility, that the drift of sentiment in states supposed to be friendly to other candidates has changed to the Alabama statesman.

The entire south should be for Underwood. The national convention is yet four months off. When the time for making the nomination arrives practically all of the southern delegates will be for Underwood. If not on the first ballot, then on the second or third. The eastern and southern democracy will easily agree on Underwood.

The Baltimore convention will now be long drawn out. There will be probably only a few ballots. Underwood has not pushed himself forward as a presidential candidate; what efforts are put forth in his behalf are put forth by friends. But Underwood's mastery of the tariff question, his love for the constitution splendid defense of the principles of representative government, and his fine business sense combine to make him an ideal man for president. And the more that people consider him the more fully convinced they will be that democracy would be the wisest and most opportune way for them to fail to nominate this Alabama statesman. The Age-Herald has faith enough in the party to believe the delegates to the Baltimore convention will make Underwood the Standard Bearer. Age-Herald.

EAGLETES.

The man who pays no license tax would like to see the corporations jammed to the limit.

There is a general idea that night is so much worse than the day, but it is not.

Contracting a drug habit is something on the order of contracting debts. The farther you go the worse you suffer.

The "buy now while it's cheap" has never appealed to many people (all the price really goes up).

There are still people that are old-fashioned enough to tell you that nothing is a bargain unless you need it.

Presidential candidates turn their campaign over to a manager, while smaller fry have their friends, bring them out.

Nearly all of us have a good deal less, unless about our work which is never "bushed" or "habited."

Many young men put too much confidence in a shine and too little in the smell of their breath.

Switzerland.

If flowers and sunshine were enough to satisfy all humanity, doubtless there would not be fire and cold. There are those who find in the snow-capped peaks of the Alps a charm which is never unfolded to them in the tropics, and even in winter there are those who dream of mountain climbing and those who even cross the ocean to enjoy the sport with its splendid exercise and its inspiration in the grandeur ever being unfolded before them.

Women in Suicide Epidemic.

No fewer than five suicides, all of women, were committed in Paris one recent day. A mother and her daughter took cyanide of potassium because they had not so food for three days. A young Austrian girl of 18 threw herself only the rails as a train was entering the Marbeuf station of the Metro. A woman of 10 took arsenic, and the fifth, who was 27, shot herself through the heart.

Inspired Famous Hymn.

"Jesus, Lover of My Soul," is a hymn around which many traditions and sacred associations cling. The story connected with its origin may be legendary, but it is no less beautiful. Its author, Charles Wesley, was sitting at his desk by an open window when a bird perched by a hawk flew in. The bird was saved, for the hawk feared to follow it. The incident inspired Wesley to write his famous lines.

A Jewel.

Says one of the characters in a current play, speaking of his wife whom he wants to divorce: "She sees that my meals are properly cooked, she runs my house, she takes care that the linens are on my clothes, but does that make her a wife? Nope, it doesn't make her a wife. It makes her a jewel of purest ray serene—Philadelphia Inquirer.

There Are Others.

In our adolescent inexperience we cherished the notion that hotel clerks and book store attaches were the most conspicuous of the unintelligents. Yesterday, however, a telegraphic operator objected to our using "jargon" in a night letter. "We don't allow code words," said he. And for the life of us we couldn't think of a snappy comeback.

Education Through Toys.

Noak's ark, skittles, ten sets, tin animals, steam rollers, fire engines, tops, croquet sets, dominos, dolls, spades, skin and wooden animals, dolls, boxes of bricks and A, B, C blocks are among the toys recommended by the London county council, education, committee for the schools.

Would Be Great Step in Advance.

Confidence between employer and employed would not only solve the social problem, but would rid us of a great many evils in existence at the present day.

STRONG PLEA FOR PARKWAY

Los Angeles Newspaper Condemns Proposed Plan as Not in Interests of Economy

W. H. Humphreys of the Los Angeles board of public works has gone on record as favoring narrower drive ways in strictly residential districts and would lessen the street width and when the parkway of many cities is taken into consideration the view of the matter says the Examiner of that city. Narrow streets cost less to build and less to maintain than wide ones and when there are to be paved with asphalt cost and upkeep is no small expense

But there is another side to the question, the esthetic view of the matter. How many have beautiful streets with but a narrow green ribbon along each side from 18 to 24 inches wide? Such a paucity of park way does not in the least influence the appearance of the street. All that may be said for it is that street trees may be planted therein though they can not remain in vigorous health and beauty except for their youthful years. It may be possible for a tree to survive for many years under such hard conditions but what about them in 20 or 25 years at the time when they should be most impressive. The trunks will then have filled any or every parkway from curb to walk. Shall we then cut them out or shall we cut a large half circle out of the cement sidewalk and also narrow the driveway three or more feet on each side by moving each curb toward the middle of the street? Would it not be better to start right and have fine vigorous healthy trees for all time and rest assured of their enduring contribution to the continued beautification of our city? When shall we correct admittedly wrong conditions? Do it now

MAKING A CITY BEAUTIFUL

Plenty of Trees Not the Only Essential to Good Effects—Straight Streets Wrong

When art will make our streets or beautiful as the woods and a clearing in the mountainsides then it will be a pleasure and a rest and not a weight upon the spirit to come from the open country into the city. But saving a great writer and a great observer though this means primarily the carrying out of the writer's hobby—fully planned streets—there is much more to be done before we have beautiful streets

Straight streets in residence districts especially among the hills are largely wrong though if many were out-of-line we might easily find a few straight ones. In following a straight street we are impressed with its monotony except it be well planned and flanked with fine gardens. On streets of noisy of graceful curves the scene is ever changing and we view both street and garden scenery from every possible angle, thereby getting all variations obtainable. It is most constitutes a crime to cut canyons through hills for it will ever be a source of regret to those of good taste clear down to the end of time

Nevertheless we are progressing in this respect for many large subdivisions of late have been laid out in conformity to the contour of the hills. This means usually that landscape engineers rather than civil engineers only are planning this new work. Wider parkways are also prevailing still another assurance that the landscape gardener and horticulturist is not without influence even in cold-headed business deals

European Model Villages

The plan of "garden cities" has been taken up with great enthusiasm in France and in many industrial centers efforts have been made to follow the English example of establishing model villages for work people. A big coal-mining company near Douai has laid out a splendid garden village and now is rendering more beautiful the approaches to the mines making the unsightly estate and engine houses with rose gardens

Woman Travelers Expect Much

But for an interesting discrimination and all round exacting proprietor the lady patron is doubtless the winner. She must always have a parlor floor room with bath fronting the street plenty of closet room. The room must be large enough to accommodate a couple of box-cars she calls trunks. She will use them three or four times as a man keep the bell hops in perpetual motion to answer her calls and make more complaints about the temperature of her room in one day than a man would in a month

MANY CASES OF RABIES IN WEST

Much Less Has Been Caused to Live Stock and in Several Localities People Have Been Bitten

During the past year there have been many cases of rabies in Kansas and other western states which have caused much loss of live stock and in several localities people have been bitten by rabid dogs

This is one of the oldest diseases known and it was first reported in the fourth century B. C. The season of the year makes very little difference as the disease is just as prevalent in the winter as in summer. This is contrary to the ideas of many persons who think that July and August known as dog days is the only time that dogs are subject to rabies

The disease is caused in nearly all cases by the bite of a rabid animal but it is possible to contract rabies from the saliva the tears from the eyes or the milk of a rabid animal. The rabid dog is a source of danger a few days before the symptoms of the disease appear but in no case before it has bitten by a rabid animal or otherwise inoculated

Hot weather lack of water or ill treatment will never in themselves produce rabies

The symptoms seldom develop in less than 14 days after the animal was bitten—most commonly three to six weeks but they may not show from six months to a year. Not all animals bitten develop the disease. It depends somewhat on the part of the body which was bitten

In man there is less danger if bitten through the clothing than upon the bare parts of the body. The face being the most dangerous it is not uncommon for the symptoms to develop in less than two weeks when bitten upon the head

In cattle they are prone to chase chickens and ducks and it is occasionally seen at man often falling down with a swelling of the mouth but seldom in killing

Horses are more at loss than cattle in killing the master himself or other things within reach

Treatment consists of the Pasteur process which must be taken before the symptoms have developed. In order to be effective it must be taken within a very few days after being bitten by a rabid animal. The most sure is of no use as a prevention of rabies

Disappointed Office Seekers

A man will get so mad because the job he wants is not given to someone else that he will spend weeks fighting the appointment board purely on principle

Strange

It is strange how a man who sits for hours doubled over a running car at a wheel will strain the neck if he handles a shovel for five minutes

DEATH OF DUCK AND OYSTER

Conquered by Clinging to the Faint Bird Until the Bird Was Drowned.

Not long ago there occurred a lively contest in Maryland waters between a duck and an oyster. The oyster was victorious, but it was a fatal victory, for when the bird had killed the duck there appeared a man who and the oyster and ate them both.
The combat between the duck and the oyster was of the rough and tum-bular kind. It was of the diving species frequently seen in those waters.
Now when the oyster feeds it opens its shell so wide that the full oyster can be plainly visible. The sight of a morsel was too great a temptation for the duck. He made a headlong plunge, inserting his bill between the oyster's open shell.

Like a flash the shell closed on the beak. There came a struggle.
The oyster, which was quite large one, was dragged from its bed, and three smaller bivalves clinging to it, the cluster being heavy enough to drag the duck's head under water.
In this way the bird drowned. Its body was sufficient to float it to the surface, and thus it drifted to the dock, where it was captured and taken from the water the oyster was clinging to the bird's head and took force that considerable distance before it was breaking its hold.

WAS HER EYESIGHT FAILING?

When Who Could Not See the Tail of the Commas Went to Oculist.

Sometimes a comma makes a good deal of difference to the meaning of a sentence you happen to be reading. A woman who has reached the age of being called "Mammy" by most people, but whose friends always tell her how young and girlish she looks, was reading a newspaper article. It didn't make any sense, she read it again. Then she reread the paper up close to her face, and toward the window and studied it in a better light. Then she saw it all on the comma. What had looked like a perfectly good period was after all a division of a sentence.
She sat for a moment with the paper in her lap. Then she rose, walking to her looking glass, studied herself a few seconds, put on her hat and went to an oculist. "I will not tell," said she to herself, "until I try this point of a needle or filament myself by stooping to pick a pin up on a car platform and find a nail head worn smooth. I will try my old age imposture as gracefully possible. I wonder," said she with a grin, "if the fall of that comma was really plain, or was it blurred in a newspaper I was reading?"

Feeling a Convalescent Child.

When my small son was convalescing from a recent illness the doctor told me not to give him, broths, etc., and advised that it would require some time to get him to take them.
After I had prepared the little broth for the day I rolled paper into balls and stood one up over each little cup. Then I placed a penny flat on one end, and let it fall. I had
"J" in camp and so on and so on.
I was visiting.

I stopped first at the captain's table (where the flag was) and he looked at the treat offered. Then he gave me from tent to tent, eagerly he up the paper cones to see what beneath.

The next day I made a log cabin of toasted bread strips, piled high in a fashion. It is delicious. A cup of tea, which he drank because he thought it was a way that appealed to his imagination.

He played soda fountain and he for his hot drinks with his box, and thus I accomplished my task without fiction—flappers.

Does Eat Earth in West Africa

Believes of West Africa, in French and practice "geophagy." Although practiced in common in many parts of the world, this particular case is remarkable for the systematic way in which it is collected, and for the fact that it occurs in a well cultivated area, where food is abundant. The subject is a clay, which is interested among the girls of the region in beds of various thickness. The geophagists are preferred for this reason the natives distinct, which are so crudely considered that falls of earth frequently is, sometimes with fatal results.
An unlucky miner is thus buried.
An attempt is made to rescue him, as believed that the divinity of mines require an annual victim. It is stated that individuals not infrequently consume seven and a half pounds of clay daily.

Man Gets a Bouquet

After getting recently a lack of errand was in collision with no great damage was done, but a few moments considerable excess prevailed among the community. One woman in particular was the rail, and in her panic sent out on leaping or board. An old-young man restrained her, assuring there was no danger. At length she was sufficiently calmed to speak, then, clinging to her preserver's arm: "You know, I'm a man and a suffragette, but there are some times when a man is a very good thing to have around."

Moving Stairways.
The advantages of moving stairways include the following: (a) There is no waiting. (b) The service is continuous throughout traffic hours.
(c) Passengers are carried practically to the point of their destination, and the necessity for long connecting passageways is thus avoided. (d) Moving stairways can deliver the same number of people for a shorter time period, whereas with lifts the capacity is dependent on the number of lifts and the depths of the shafts. (e) In case of breakdown passengers can walk up a moving stairway as up an ordinary staircase.

Important Thing to Know.
It is easy to understand why the nation is willing that millions be spent on a weather bureau. We can only foretell through weather reports, capsized bone prospects, corn husk prognosticators or in any other way just what the weather will be from day to day. Living will be made a great deal easier for us all. We can get the day in out of that thunderstorm or hold up that shipment of perishable stuff that a solid freeze and severe weather will utterly ruin.

Through the Swiss Mountains.
At Breil (Old St.), among the Alps, the railroad passes the rock-climb, from which the Swiss government procures most of the salt which sale is a government monopoly, and often sold only by the local postman, who deals not only in stamps, but in salt. At this point a (sobered) rail is brought into play, and the gradient rapidly increases, as the cars pass through woods of walnuts and chestnuts, here an important item of the diet and income of these owners.

Millionaire's Humor.
Baron Gustave de Rothschild had a pleasant mixture of caution and waggery. Once while in the synagogue his neighbor suddenly plucked him by the sleeve and whispered hoarsely, "I have come away this morning without locking the safe!" "Don't worry," replied Rothschild, looking round at the vast congregation, "we are all of us here!"

Had a Practical Mind.
An English Sabbath school teacher was talking away on the subject of eternal punishment. One small girl so entranced by her lurid descriptions of fire and brimstone that the teacher was much encouraged until frenzied by the explanatory question of "Please, teacher, what becomes of all the sinners?"

Frothing Know.
It was reported in Charles Frohman that one of his most prosperous musicians was in a fair way of getting married. "I don't believe it," answered the manager, who to himself a confirmed single man. "he will escape; he was always a good flight off."

Bursting With Self-Importance.
"What is the matter with Jones?"
He used to be a modest sort of fellow, but lately he seems almost bursting with self-importance." "Hasn't you heard?" Mrs. Jones is using another woman for alienating his affections, and put the damages at fifty thousand dollars."
—Judge.

For the Darkness Draws Near.
If a man have the truth in him, the thought of his own death as an ever-present possibility will, far from paralyzing effort, drive him to a more faithful performance of duty. As the poet says, "then let him turn today."
—Exchange.

Somewhat Rough on the Fish.
The Japanese have a novel way of keeping fish fresh for use. You go in to the restaurant and pick out your own fish in the tank. If there is more fish than you want the chef cuts off a piece to fill and returns the rest to the tank to swim about till wanted.

What Could She Mean?
Miss O'Grady: "When I am doing so-lous work I hate to have a lot of men ranging around bothering me." Miss Pett: "You do a great deal of serious work, do you not?"—Baltimore American.

Parish the Thought of Proofs.
"Wait a moment," said the huddling novelist. "I will show you the proofs of my novel." But the other balanced head: "No, no," he said, "I don't need proofs. Your word is enough."

Gas.
Mrs. Barton: "The man was here today, dear, looking for the gas leak." Mr. Barton: "And did he find it?"
"Yes, but they haven't found the man yet."—Statesman.

Valuable Lace Handkerchiefs.
Millions in Switzerland make handkerchiefs of lace that readily sell for 45 apiece—some, indeed, for as much as $50 each.

The Real Puzzle.
The puzzle is not whether Bacon or Shakespeare wrote the plays, but that one person could get them all so repeated.

Danger Long Appreciated.
The danger of infection from drinking cups was noted at least 250 years ago and probably before that time.
